

Fiona Reynolds

Position/Department/Division/Institution/Organization

Chief Executive Officer – Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI)

Country

UK

Career history

Fiona Reynolds is the CEO of the Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI). The PRI is a U.N. supported organisation, with more than 3,000 signatories who collectively represent over US $100 trillion in Assets Under Management. She is responsible for the PRI's global operations.

The PRI is the major global organisation for responsible investment practices and leadership and the integration of environmental, social and governance (ESG) issues across the investment chain. The PRI's mission is to create a sustainable global financial system and the organisation aims to bring responsible investors together to work towards creating sustainable financial markets that contribute to a more prosperous world for all.

Appointed at the beginning of 2013, Fiona has 25 years' experience in the financial services and pension sector. She joined the PRI from Australian Institute of Superannuation Trustees (AIST), where she spent seven years as the CEO, working within the Australian superannuation sector. In this position she played an active role in advocating pension fund policy and participated in several government committees and working groups on superannuation and retirement incomes policy.

Fiona also serves on the Board of the U.N. Global Compact, she Chaired of the Financial Services Commission into Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking (The Liechtenstein initiative) and is now a member of the Finance Against Slavery and Trafficking (FAST) Global Steering Committee. Fiona is also a member of the International Integrated Reporting Council (IIRC), the Global Advisory Council on Stranded Assets at Oxford University, the Advisory Board for the Green Investment Principles for the Belt and Road, the Global Steering Committee for the Investor Agenda on Climate Action and the Steering Committee for Climate Action 100+ which is the largest ever investor engagement with listed companies.

Fiona has formerly been a pension fund director/trustee of AUS fund and been on the board of Industry Funds Credit Control, Australia for UNHCR, the Australian Council of Superannuation Investors and the National Women in Super Network.

Awards/Publications

Fiona was named by Barron's magazine of one of the 20 most influential people in sustainability globally and has twice been named by the Australian Financial Review (AFR) as one of Australia's one hundred women of influence for her work in financial services and responsible investment.

Areas of expertise

Fiona has 25 years' experience in the financial services and pension sector.